Some of the big men, and papers too, perhaps, in this State will be very much surprised and mortified to find that the Democratic party can get along very well, and win a victory as easily without them as with them. Their defection will be more than made up by the increased vigilance and zeal of others, who do not pretend to be great leaders. The rank and file, the common people, will fight this battle, and the so called self elected come out next November to discover that they have not been missed.

MR. A. M. Hughes, jr., of Columbia, has been nominated as successor of the Mississippi river, the grandest river of all the world, midway between the cities of New Orleans and St. 1 00 Revenue Collector for the Nashville Louis, and representing the most imdistrict. Woodcock has held the portant commercial constituency be position about five years, and says 1 75 now that if removed he will probably take his family to Long Branch or to Europe for the summer. Mr Hughes 1873 and is now a clerk in the Post-He will probably be confirmed, and after he has held the place as long as Woodcock will probably be ready for a prolonged trip to Europe.

James and E. H. Hatcher. They proclamate at length, but the fulmination will fall as flat as a last year's almanac.

> COLONEL William H. Carroll, after many years' faithful service in the State Democratic Executive Committee, has declined to serve another term, and Captain J. T. Hillsman has been appointed. The corrected list appears in to-day's paper. Colonel Carroll, while not approving the late Shelby county resolutions, or even the platform adopted at Nashville, is still a Democrat to the core, and will heartily support General Bate for Governor. Captain Hillsman is a very active Democrat, with a wide acquaintance throughout the State. and will doubtless render good service in a position requiring sound judgment and tact. Democracy is virtually harand will do its whole duty.

> Captain W. G. Ewin, who is spending the summer at Eldorado, is consued to his bed. His many friends here will regret to learn that he has not improved in health, but on the contrary, is very feeble.—[Nashville

> Mr. Moore on Mississippi River Improvements.

The bill in the House of Representatives making appropriations for the Jo Brooks, of Memphis, has a Collar 750,000 Bushels of June construction, repair, and preservation of certain works on rivers and larbors, and other purposes, was under consideration on the 14th inst., and Hon. Wm. R. Moore made the subjoined remarks. The bill appropriates a leaders sulking in their tents, will grand total of $17,342,876, and of this amount the sum of $4,923,000 is appropriated to improving the Mississippi river. Mr. Moore said :

Mr. Chairman, living on the banks tween those two great cities, it is not unreasonable that I should feel an interest in this all important question. Whether this report of the committee is to build levees or to reclaim is a son of Judge A. M. Hughes, of overflowed lands is not the question Columbia; was in the Legislature in to my mind. I do not think it was intended or reported for that purpose Every gentleman in this House, I be office Department at Washington lieve, admits that something should be done to improve the navigation of the Mississippi river and to prevent its annually recurring disastrous over-flows. It must be done by somebody. others, equally earnest and intelligent advocate what is known as the "outlet" system. So far as I am individually concerned, I believe the only ultimate solution of the question is a combina-tion of both outlets and levees. That, however, is a matter of no concern to this House; nor would I now urge my own views, even were they settled into convictions far more fixed than any merely theoretic opinions like those pulled of most of us who desire national legislation upon this broad question.

Agreeing, as all of us do, on the commercial importance of the improvement of the Mississippi river, the only question that to day presents itself is, what is now best to do?

A river commission has been ap-pointed by a previous Congress, and it meets with the indorsement of the Secretary of War. The work is to be done, according to the provisions of this bill, only under their joint super-vision and control. If there be jobs in it, as a great many people say there are jobs in everything, it is altogether probable that no more money will be and back injured. C. J. It is a mere inci-dent of all public improvements that profit should accrue to somebody; indeed, if it were not so, why should they ever be undertaken?
